Speaking of something kind of like a load bearing vest, does anyone know where to get suspenders you can hook up to an 8+1 harness. I am getting mightey sick of that thing pulling down my pants as I run from bunker to bunker. APS is out of stock of the black ones. Something I did to my harness... I bought a backsupporter (with suspenders) then I sewed it to the webbing of my 6+1. This gives back support and has suspenders... try it. I made me custom suspenders with parts from the local camping supply store. No sewing - just used nylon webbing and the plastic accessories.

(<http://www.nra.org>) Have you tried your local surplus store. I use alic gear suspnders and the work great. They are also padded and adjustable. I hope that this is going to help. If you've seen mine, I got them at a gun show up at Gibraltar Trade Center. They're just the regular ALICE suspenders. If you want the regular Unique-type suspenders, I have a set of those I'm willing to part with. Kennedy

Speaking of which, I was talking to Rose of Unique at the Knoxville Indoors. She mentioned that one of the Ironmen (whose name escapes me) had a back problem, so she sewed up one of the turtle packs with a back supporter and bigger/wider straps. He said that when he snugged the thing up tight, it gave him plenty of support. Kennedy
