I was thinking of getting the airsoft 6mm barreta spring powered and getting the 6mm paintballs as a sidearm for scenario games. Would any normal rec fields allow this? lemme know :-)

The small airsoft 'pellets' are small enough to go through some openings in goggles and are therefore unsafe and not allowed on insured fields. Well, don't just rule it out. It's still worthwhile to ask the field owner himself. We use them on almost every field around with full consent. Besides, it can't hurt to simply ask! dd

I was thinking of getting the airsoft 6mm barreta spring powered and getting the 6mm paintballs as a sidearm for scenario games. Would any normal rec fields allow this? lemme know :-) Im mostly sure you could do this and it would be safe(unless youre playing with the EEEAAAARLLYY masks) and fields would probably allow it, but im an airsofter, and i would NEVER put Paintball BB's in my colt XM177 or for that matter any airsoft gun because airsoft guns werent made to handle paint-breaks my .02

: I was thinking of getting the airsoft 6mm barreta spring powered and getting : the 6mm paintballs as a sidearm for scenario games. Would any normal rec :fields : allow this? lemme know :-) : : do the paintballs work in these guns? : how are the airsoft guns powered? compressed air? pump? thanks The paintballs work to some extent, but usually they are not recommended since airsoft guns aren't designed to handle paint breaks
